

WANTS LICENSE FOR DR. FRIEDMANN HERE

Senator Hughes of New Jersey to Offer Resolution in His Behalf in the Senate.

receives a report from this investigation he will, he says, get down to action.
A license for Dr. Friedmann will not in any way interfere with the investigation of the Friedmanns by the Public Health Service. Senator Hughes' interest was aroused in the remedy through the personality of Dr. Friedmann, in a chat at the White House yesterday, and he then tentatively promised Dr. Friedmann that he would do his best to get a license for him in the Senate. Dr. Friedmann is a man of high standing in the Public Health Service, and Senator Hughes gave assurance that the action would be taken to get the license for him.

Physicians to Watch Patients.
Whether or not Dr. Friedmann will be able to take advantage or make use of a license to practice medicine in the District of Columbia is not yet known. In a talk with Senator Hughes before his departure for Providence last night, the doctor said he was not in a position to state whether or not it would be possible for him to avail himself of the license. Should the license be granted it would not affect the status of the Friedmann cure, and would not interfere with the investigation of health authorities, lift the temporary embargo placed by the Public Health Service upon the Friedmann cure, pending the outcome of its investigation. So far as is known, Senator Hughes has not yet gone into these phases of the question. He made no statement with reference to them today.
"I am deeply interested in the work of Dr. Friedmann and his efforts to cure tuberculosis," said Senator Hughes today. "I intend to present a resolution which will permit him to practice in the District of Columbia. I am having the subject investigated, so that I may know just exactly what action should be taken."
Hundreds of Washington physicians, many of them of the highest standing, watch the patients treated yesterday by Dr. Friedmann with keen interest. Each week they wait for the results of the examination and report at the dispensary of George Washington University Hospital.

Feel No Ill Effects.
In the fifth or sixth week—depending upon the condition of the patient—Dr. Friedmann will return to Washington to give them a second inoculation.
Those who were treated feel no ill effects today. Most of them feel better already, probably, their physicians say, from the buoyancy of hope.
The Friedmann clinic is the one topic of conversation in medical circles in Washington today. Among the numerous physicians who attended the clinic, there is some difference of opinion as to Dr. Friedmann's technique, and his methods in general. But little unfavorable criticism is heard, however. Washington's medical fraternity is maintaining a conservative attitude, and is prepared to await results.
Sentiment gave way to science in the hearing of the clinic yesterday. Though Dr. Friedmann declared, in going to the clinic, that he would treat fifty or sixty patients, if they were available, the scientific mind and a press of time led to a process of elimination, in which but twelve cases survived.

Scenes That Grip Heartstrings.
The examination of nearly 50 applicants was attended with pleadings and prayers and cries of anguish as hopeful sufferers were turned aside, not unkindly, but with decision. Men and women of every type, in every station of life, most of them with a full knowledge of the utmost limits of their span of life, begged or prayed for just one dose of the "elixir of life."
The elimination of applicants and the clinic that followed enacted scenes after scenes of pathos and tragedy that gripped the heartstrings of the most hardened.
Little Philip Chase, five years old, of 214 Fourteenth street southeast, was one of the first applicants selected by Dr. Friedmann. His childish stoicism and defiance of the disease that had ravaged his lower limbs won wild applause from the 400 persons present at the clinic, most of whom were physicians and usually undemonstrative in the face of such scenes. Though he suffered excruciating pain at times, the boy never once whimpered. He smiled bravely at the white-gowned physicians and the awesome audience. When the inoculation was completed he reached for his little crutches and started from the room. It was then that the observers gave vent to their feelings in prolonged applause, and the little fellow declared that he would get well.

Little Girls Bring Tears.
Every person in the amphitheater was deeply affected when the treatment was given Agnes Dowd, a fair-haired little girl of four and a half years. She was brought in upon a stretcher, in the strong arms of Dr. Hundt. Her little form was emaciated from long suffering. She had received other treatments, and she was terrified by the sight that met her childish gaze. Strong men struggled for control of their feelings as she called piteously "just to see my papa." She was given three injections, one in either arm and one in the hip. The men and women treated were handled expeditiously, in a business-like manner. After receiving the treatment they all said there was little pain, except the prick of the sharp needle as it penetrated the skin and flesh.

Machinist Is First Patient.
Arthur Clements, thirty years old, a machinist of 18 E Street southeast, was the first patient. He had suffered from pulmonary tuberculosis since May 21, 1912, and had the usual symptoms. The history of his case recorded that he had lost six pounds in two months, but he did not look particularly unwell. The other patients were Mrs. George Cohen, aged thirty, 1420 Belmont street—pulmonary tuberculosis in its third stage, both lungs affected. Mrs. Cohen had suffered from the disease for years, and it appeared well advanced. She was extremely weak and emaciated.
Agnes Dowd, four years nine months, Twelfth street and Maryland avenue—tuberculosis of the lungs and healthy to the age of three years, when she complained of pains in the leg and hip. She became weak and was unable to move the joint. Her case was diagnosed as tuberculosis of the hip in February, 1912, and she had received treatment until stricken with diphtheria and measles, a little later, when the disease recurred and she was unable to get up. She had suffered great pain for months. The little girl, when she saw the needle in Dr. Friedmann's hand, screamed, "I don't want it stuck in me. When is my papa?"

Children Are Patients.
Charles H. Stansbury, Urbana, Ohio, fifty-eight years old, farmer—Tuberculosis of the bones in the foot; amputated two years ago; buckle on artificial foot rubbed a sore that developed the disease and necessitated a second amputation, resulting in the leg and in the breast bone. Mr. Stansbury was bleeding from the breast when he was treated.
Edith P. Strauser, aged seven, daughter of Policeman Strauser, 3221 Reservoir street—Healthy until April last year, when she contracted whooping cough. The cough left her with tuberculosis of the spine, and she has lost fifteen pounds.
Quincy Phillips, aged five years, nine months, 214 Fourteenth street northwest—Tuberculosis of the hip. Disease developed nine months ago. Has to use crutches.
Helena Taylor, aged eight years, 357 Quincy place—Healthy until last year, when she contracted whooping cough. The cough left her with tuberculosis of the spine, and she has lost fifteen pounds.

Dr. Friedmann Congratulated.
Roy E. Keeley, age twenty-six, 1738 P street northwest—Pulmonary and tuberculosis of bladder and kidneys. Ill year and a half.
Frederick Stoff Regier, aged twenty-three, Frederick, Va.—Pulmonary tuberculosis. Elizabeth Fawcett, aged thirty-nine, 1738 P street northwest, glandular. Ill five years.
When the clinic was concluded, Dr. Friedmann was the recipient of congratulations from the physicians and prominent men present, each of whom pleaded to shake his hand. He seemed pleased to shake the clinic to be one of the most successful he has ever held. Last night Dr. Friedmann called at the residence of the physicians and the German embassy to formally call upon Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan. He left Washington shortly after midnight for Providence, R. I., via New York.
